Biographical/Administrative History

In 1889, W. A. Merigold real estate company purchased three lots at 15th and Keeler to construct a Catholic church in the Merigold subdivision. By 1892, the Archdiocese of Chicago had established the Our Lady of Lourdes national parish to serve the Bohemian (Czech) population who were quickly moving into the Lawndale area from western Chicago. The first director of the parish, Rev. John Nepomucene Jaeger, presided over the building of a frame church and a one-room parish school in 1892.

By 1907 increased transportation options to downtown contributed to a growth in the population of Lawndale, including more Czechs, Irish and Polish families. A new church was constructed under the leadership of Rev. Alois J. Mergl in 1932 to meet the needs of the growing congregation. The parish's population remained of a predominantly European immigrant background well into the 1950s although English replaced Czech as the parish's language by 1937. By the mid-1950s the population of Lawndale began changing as African-Americans moved into the area, resulting in a majority of black residents by 1960. In 1965, Rev. Michael Dempsey was appointed pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes and began implementing employment and development programs within the parish. These programs prompted a 1967 visit from Vice President Hubert Humphrey to the parish and paved the way for Fr. Dempsey's consecration as a Bishop in 1968. In 1969, nearby St. Finbarr Parish was closed and consolidated with Our Lady of Lourdes.

Declining membership at Our Lady of Lourdes continued throughout the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s. Despite this fact, in the 1990s and early 2000s, the parish remained active, sponsoring numerous events including the Parish-Council Annual Dinner Dance, Annual Parish Picnic, and Spring Fashion Show. Small groups of dedicated volunteers kept the church running and instituted various committees, including the Community Action Group, Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults Committee, and Ministry of Care. In 1992, Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, as well as former pastors, joined parishioners to celebrate Our Lady of Lourdes' 100th Anniversary.

By 2005, average monthly attendance at Our Lady of Lourdes had dropped to just 87. At this point, the Archdiocese made the decision to close several Lawndale parishes with declining memberships, including Our Lady of Lourdes, Presentation B.V.M., and Blessed Sacrament and encouraged parishioners to attend St. Agatha's Parish, 3143 W. Douglas.
