Biographical/Administrative History

The Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) was founded in 1930, by George Cardinal Mundelein and Auxiliary Bishop Bernard J. Sheil. Bishop Sheil recognized the need for an active youth organization while he served as chaplain for Cook County jails. The youth of Chicago had gravitated to the streets and pool halls in the throws of the Great Depression. Therefore, Bishop Sheil and Cardinal Mundelein sought to provide the youth of Chicago with a place to go and things to do so that they might not turn to crime in the streets.

CYO was founded with sports as a magnet to attract youth from the streets. However, Bishop Sheil and the Cardinal wanted there to be more to CYO than just athletics. Therefore, CYO's goal was to instill in young men and women a faith in Christ and respect and pride for the nation, state, city and parish. This was accomplished by organizing the CYO so that athletics and other programs were directed by parish priests in the hope that this personal relationship between the priests and the youth would strengthen a bond with God. CYO continually emphasized the importance of a moral life.

CYO athletics, the magnet, drew in large numbers of youth off the streets and provided them with an opportunity for personal satisfaction and esteem. In the 1930's, CYO boxing had become a fighting force within the Archdiocese. Troubled young men learned the "manly art of self defense" while learning the Faith. Boxing grew in prominence, culminating in 1936, when three Chicago CYO boxers represented the United States at the Olympics held at Berlin. Another advantage to CYO boxing was that underprivileged youth received much needed medical and dental care.

In 1934 alone, CYO sports drew thousands of youth to the Church. CYO basketball was said to be the largest league in the world with an estimated 10,000 participants, over 500 teams of boys and girls playing basketball through their home parishes.

Bishop Sheil maintained what he called his "three point plan" of development: mental, physical and spiritual. Bishop Sheil was known to say, "Sports builds character" and his athletic programs sought to do just that. In order to build mental character and improve the mind, CYO offered scholarships for Catholic colleges and universities to boys who would not otherwise have been able to afford a college education. Bishop Sheil also opened the Holy Name Technical Institute, a flying school in Lockport, Illinois and a seeing-eye-dog service for the blind.

CYO also established vacation schools, also known as day camps to provide religious influence to young people. These camps also gave poor children the opportunity to become involved in educational recreation thus preventing child delinquency by filling their time with activities and lessons in morality. It was required that all families who participated in the day camps and vacation schools fill out information cards. This helped parish priests keep track of his parishioners.

Bishop Sheil, while serving as director of the CYO, used the organization to push for social justice, following in the footsteps of the papal encyclical Rerum Novarum. Sheil organized the youth and their families against laissez-faire capitalism, communism and socialism. The CYO stood for better race relations, organized labor, post-war reconstruction and adult education.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil stepped down as director of the Catholic Youth Organization in 1954. He appointed as his successor Monsignor Kelly with Reverend Raymond Pavis as his assistant director.

Beginning in the 1950's Monsignor Kelly incorporated the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts and the Big Brother program into CYO. Under John Cardinal

Cody, all Scouts were honored with a large ceremony and Mass at Holy Name Cathedral.

Rev. Raymond Pavis became director in 1971. He instituted a massive restructuring in 1975. CYO then was renamed the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Youth and was organized into four sectors: athletics, Big Brothers, scouting, and teen and young adult activities. Throughout the 1970's and '80's, the Big Brother program assigned adult "big brothers" to young people in trouble with the law so as to help them grow up to lead a full and moral life without the stigma of having a criminal record.

Today, Rev. John Smyth is the director of CYO. He and his assistant, Rev. David Ryan still promote spiritual, intellectual and physical growth. CYO organizes athletic events, promotes and supports the Boy and Girl Scouts of America, and forwards youth ministry to youth across the Archdiocese.

Separations

This collection is related to the Catholic Youth Organization Papers collection.

Scope & Content

This collection consists of fifteen boxes of photographs of Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) participants, directors and activities.

These photographs span from the 1930's through the middle 1990's. The majority of these photographs are images of CYO athletic events and the participants therein. However, this collection also documents well the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts organized under the aegis of the Archdiocese and CYO; Day Camps (also known as Vacation Schools); and many more youth outreach programs.
