Biographical/Administrative History

Archbishop James E. Quigley founded a diocesan seminary to serve the city of Chicago in 1905. The archdiocese purchased a building in the center of downtown Chicago, fully immersing its students in the environment they were learning to serve. A departure from standard seminary practice of the day, Quigley Preparatory Seminary operated as a day school allowing students to return to their home parishes for participation in weekend services with their families. The school began as a minor seminary, but the intent was always to complete a major seminary by the time the first class graduated. On September 16, 1917, construction began on the new seminary building on Rush St. which was finally dedicated and blessed on June 10, 1920.

Rev. Francis Andrew Purcell, the first rector, served for 26 years. He was succeeded by Father Phillip Francis Mahoney. After only four years, Father Malachy P. Foley replaced Fr. Mahoney. As rector, Fr. Foley encouraged his faculty to pursue graduate degrees in their chosen fields and fostered professional relationships between faculty and students. When he was appointed rector of St. Mary of the Lake Seminary, Fr. John W. Schmidt took his place during the summer of 1944. After Chicago's population boom and the consequent increase in enrollment during 1955, Fr. Schmidt resigned to let a younger man take his place. Fr. Martin Howard served as rector until 1961 when he transferred to Quigley South to help establish the new campus. Fr. John O'Donnell was appointed the 6th rector of Quigley North (the original minor seminary in downtown Chicago) in 1961 after the departure of Fr. Howard and several faculty members to the new Quigley South. Fr. Donald E. Cusack became rector in 1975.

In October of 1970, Cardinal Cody established new admission rules which expanded access to the seminary to both students who expressed a desire to enter the priesthood as well as students who faculty and priests believed had the temperament and disposition to pursue the priesthood if given the right opportunities and encouragement.

Quigley South is a high school seminary operating on the Southwest side of Chicago in Ashburn. It was officially dedicated in September of 1962, and classes began with nearly 900 students and 39 faculty members. When Fr. Howard left to pastor St. Basil Parish, Fr. John F. Fahey took his place. In 1969, a group called the United Black Seminarians (USB) was organized to celebrate the black students at Quigley South. Fr. James P. Keleher became rector in 1976, but was replaced only three years later by Fr. Gerald F. Kicanas when he was appointed to St. Mary of the Lake University. On October 5, 1979, Pope John Paul II visited Quigley South to address the American hierarchy, and he held a special meeting with Quigley students. Quigley South was the largest minor seminary in the United States for most of its existence.

Scope & Content

There are 22 boxes in all that cover the period between 1928 through 2005. The bulk of imagery focuses in greater detail on Quigley Preparatory Seminary South, and on Archbishop Quigley Preparatory Seminary [the merge of South and North in 1990 through 2007]. There is one box that holds images of Quigley Preparatory Seminary [1928-1961] and one box from Quigley Preparatory Seminary North, [1961-1990]

Although the bulk of material in the later years can be attributed to the increasing use of photography in efforts to document, it seems apparent that those at Quigley South may have had a vested interest in photographic documentation that easily transferred to the consolidated seminary of AQPS in 1990. There is a dearth of images from Quigley North during the same period that Quigley South flourished. The small accumulation of images in the early years of Quigley [QPS] have an understandably cultural component in that most people would reserve picture making to momentous occasions such as graduations or visits of dignitaries. There is no explanation for the relative lack of photographs for QPSN in the period of 1961-1990.

Boxes 32397.01, 32397.03-32398.04 contain images of QPSS, from its initial 'design and build' stage to the formal dedication and consecration of the school and chapel; first year student class photos, first year graduation at Holy Name, opening of the gym, classroom scenes, community programs, student events, sports teams, exteriors, interiors, faculty photos, student photos, Marian Tribute, John Paul II visit, Cardinal Meyer, Cardinal Bernardin, Mayor Richard M. Daley and the Chicago Bears football Team in a basketball match.

Box 32398.05 is from QPS [1917-1961] and contains two class photos of 1945 and '46, architectural views and images of Paul VI as cardinal, with Msgr. Brackin, Msgr. Howard and Cardinal Stritch.

Box 32398.06 is QPSN [1961-1990] containing architectural photographs, BW prints of students in the classroom and photos of the Track and Field Sports Team

The remainder of the collection—boxes 32398.05-32399.06, 32397.02—represent AQPS, the period 1990-2007, with a large focus on seminary fund raising events such as courtyard music festivals, harvest fests, golf outings, dinner dance benefits and phone-a-thons. There are architectural images for certification and restoration, memorial Masses, ordinations, graduation, alumni reunions, sports and images of students in the classroom, hallways, and on retreats.
