FOREWORD

In 1996 the Czech & Slovak American Genealogy Society of Illinois (CSAGSI) discovered that the book Locations of Chicago Roman Catholic Churches 1850-1990 was out of print and no additional printing was contemplated. When contacted, Mr. Jack Bochar graciously extended permission to reprint the publication in its entirety.

What appeared to be a straight-forward task became far more complex when we became aware of the number of changes that had occurred in a few short years. Closures of Chicago Catholic parishes reached its peak in 1990-1991. Many records were moved to the archdiocesan Archives & Records Center, and the Center itself found a new home. Telephone area codes changed and several churches moved their offices from the rectory to other sites. The microfilmed church records at the Family History Library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints have in some cases been revised. As each change was noted it became apparent that the second printing of this book would also be a revision.

CSAGSI sincerely hopes that everyone who reads this updated reprint will find its layout clear and useful. We believe that this book is a valuable asset in doing Chicago genealogical research and trust that you will find the information which will lead you to your ancestors' records.

PREFACE

One of the major resources available to genealogists is the Roman Catholic Church sacramental records. Before obtaining these records, however, you must know which church your ancestor attended. If this happens to be in the city of Chicago, the task can become very difficult indeed. Suppose you know where your ancestor lived in Chicago in 1880 but have no idea which churches, if any, were in the area at that time. To make matters worse, some churches were English-speaking territorial while others were national for foreign-language parishioners. It is conceivable that in the absence of a national church for, say Poles, they would attend a nearby German church. On the other hand, English-speaking parishioners would rarely attend a national foreign-speaking church. Therefore, your ancestor may not have attended the nearest church.

It should be noted that this publication is not a history of the Chicago churches but rather a Church-Locating guide for the city of Chicago. For an excellent history of the Chicago churches, see the two-volume set, A History of the Parishes of the Archdiocese of Chicago, by Rev. Msgr. Harry C. Koenig, Chicago: Catholic Bishop of Chicago, 1980. These volumes which I referred to many times, are full of interesting history and genealogical resources. These books would be a nice addition to any genealogical library.

To use this Church-Locating guide, you must know the address or the approximate location where your ancestor lived during an approximate period of time. This can be found through appropriate searches using censuses, city directories, etc. If you are using a current map to locate your ancestor's place of residence, remember that street names and numbering change over the years. In 1909 Chicago completely changed the street numbering plan to a more uniform, less confusing layout. This Church-Locating guide is based on the present Chicago city boundaries only. Therefore if you have the old addresses, they should be converted to modern day addresses. The Chicago Historical Society, the Newberry Library, and the Chicago Public Library have references that can translate the old address to the new street numbers.

The maps in this guide (not to true scale) are divided into two halves for each set of years that I refer to as upper city and lower city, Pershing Road (3900S) being the dividing line. Note, due to limited space on the maps, a few church reference numbers (italicized) have a left arrow adjacent to them (Figure 1). This means that that particular church is located somewhat to the west but still in the city of Chicago. The maps cover the years 1850-1990 and are in five-year increments so, if for example, a church started in 1881 it would first show up on the 1885 map.

As an example of how to use this Church-Locating guide, suppose you know in 1850 your ancestor lived around Ashland Avenue and 32nd Street (modern addressing). Locating this address on a commercial map, turn to the year 1850 on the maps in the Church-Locating guide. Locate the spot just found on the commercial map and you find only a single church, number 6, in the area. Turning to the number 6 in the Church Reference Numbers section, you see that the church was St. Bridget. (Note that the number 6 has nothing to do with the church establishment

x CHICAGO CHURCH LOCATIONS

date but is merely used as a reference.) Still looking at Church Reference Numbers section, number 6, you will see that from 1847-1850 it was a mission of St. Patrick. St. Bridget was closed in 1990 and, as indicated, the records can be found at the Archives & Records Center of the Archdiocese of Chicago. Each account in the Church Reference Numbers section will give the reference number, church name, church location, map grid, date of founding, and ethnic composition at time of founding, and the location of the church's sacramental records. Caution should be taken on the organization date. Although a church has been organized it does not necessarily mean that it existed at that date. Sometimes it was a few years after the organization date that a church existed. You may see, for instance, that the organization date is 1850 in our example of number 6, but in 1847 there was a mission and from 1847 to 1850 services were held in parishioners' homes. It was not until February 1862 that a church was dedicated. Included in the Church-Locating guide is an alphabetical listing of the churches, a numerical listing of the churches, a chronological listing of church organization date, and a cross-reference grid to locate a church on the maps.

Although much care has been taken to assure the accuracy of the information contained in the Church-Locating guide, there is always a chance something may have been overlooked or otherwise incorrect. The current church addresses are to the best of my knowledge correct at the time of this printing. Churches are constantly changing and therefore, so do their addresses and telephone numbers. Each year the Archdiocese of Chicago publishes the Official Catholic Directory which contains the up-to-date addresses and telephone numbers of each church. I am thankful to the many parish priests I have contacted in obtaining and verifying information. I owe the most thanks to the Archdiocese of Chicago Archives & Records Center which I contacted many times and I received much valuable information. In particular I would like to thank Nancy Sandleback and Patrick Cunningham for all their time and effort. I hope this Church-Locating guide can aid you as much as it has helped me in my genealogical research. Good luck in your ancestor research.

4 CHICAGO CHURCH LOCATIONS

Errata: Second Edition note.

Review of Section IV, Location Grid, revealed the following errors in church location.

Church	Grid as shown on map	Proper grid location
2	K-10	J-10
42	S-12	S-11
#116	Q-11	P-11

#261	F-6	F-7

Locations of churches #17, 37, and 193 were corrected in the Second Edition.

CHURCH REFERENCE NUMBERS

Each record in this section is composed of three parts: 1) description of the church, 2) present location of its sacramental records, and 3) pertinent historical facts of the parish. To illustrate the format used in the description of the church, the following example is given:

# on Map Grid	Location	Date of Founding
3.	St. Joseph - Hill and Orleans St.	(J-9) 1846 (German)
	Name	Map Grid Ethnicity at Founding

If the parish is still in existence, the next entry will read simply: "Records at: Name of Church, Chicago Street Address of the Church Office, Zip Code, Phone Number." If the church has been closed or consolidated, this information is given first, followed by the present location of the records. To obtain records from the archdiocesan archives, please contact:

Archdiocese of Chicago
Archives & Records Center
 711 W. Monroe St.
 Chicago, Illinois 60661
 (312) 831-0711.

Please note that a vast number of the records prior to 1916 are available on microfilm at the Family History Centers of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Refer to Section X to see which records were filmed.

MAPS 1850 - 1990

The following maps (not to scale) are divided into two halves for each year given. I refer to these as upper city limits and lower city limits with Pershing Road (3900 south) being the dividing line. These maps are based on the present Chicago city boundaries only, using current street names. For a given year, locate the spot on these maps that you are interested in and you can then see which churches were in the area at that time. Each church on the map is indicated by a reference number within the church-shaped figure, or next to a small black square. Using the reference number just found, turn to Section V, Church Reference Numbers, matching that number to identify the church.

Second Edition note: Please refer to Errata on page 4 for Churches #2, 42, 116, 140, and 261.

AVAILABLE RECORDS ON MICROFILM

A number of Roman Catholic church records for the city of Chicago have been microfilmed by the LDS Family History Library in Salt Lake City. These films can be ordered through the LDS branch libraries. The following list was obtained from the LDS Locality Catalog on microfiche or computer CD.¹ The records can be found under Illinois, Cook, Chicago - Church Records. For each church, if known, the Church Reference Number has been added. The location of the original records can be found in Section V, Church Reference Numbers.
